some people because of peer pressure, others because of the excitement, and some because drugs seem to offer an escape to life and the struggles that come along.